FARM MACHINE FIRM A TRUST DECLARES U.S.

Recommends Anti-Trust Proceedings Against Harvester Company and Prosecution of Other Firms

PRICES ADVANCE 73 PER CENT IN FOUR YEARS SAYS REPORT

Increase Not Warranted by Higher Costs Declares the Commission

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Methods alleged by the federal trade commission to have been used by manufacturers of farm implements to advance prices through "concerted action" are described, it become known today, in a report of the commission's investigation, which was authorized by the senate.

The commission announced last night that it had recommended the reopening of anti-trust proceedings against the International Harvester company and the institution of court proceedings against implement manufacturers and dealers who, the commission asserted, have illegally increased prices.

Raise Not Warranted

Its investigation, the trade commission declared, disclosed that between 1914 and 1918 prices of farm implements advanced 73 per cent. Advance in the cost and expenses of manufacturers and dealers did not warrant, the commission said, such an increase.

Discussing methods which the commission charges officers and members of implement manufacturers' associations used to bring about and maintain high price levels, the report states that "price comparison meetings" were held at which "advances in prices recently made or intended to be made were discussed."

Agreed on Increase

Meetings also were held. It is charged, at which "inflated costs were compared with the tacit understanding that prices would be advanced the same percentage shown by the inflated costs," and at which agreements were made respecting uniform terms and the standardization of implements and equipment.

The commission's report further states that members of manufacturers' associations made use of frequent exchange of price lists by mail so that members could check up on each other's prices, terms and equipment furnished, and that letters were sent "urging low price members to increase their prices."

"That the officers and members of the manufacturers' associations realized," the report continues, "that they were engaged in illegal activities is indicated by the attempted secrecy they sought to throw over all price activities."

ST. FRANCIS BUYS BISHOP'S HOME FOR ITS NURSES

Pay $15,000 and Plan Expenditure of $7,000 on the Property

DEAL UNDER WAY FOR NEW RESIDENCE FOR PRELATE

Contemplating Property in Exclusive Section

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made of a deal whereby the residence of Bishop James Schwebach, Eleventh and Ferry streets, becomes the property of the St. Francis Hospital corporation.

It is the intention of the hospital people to convert it into a home for nurses.

While the deed filed with Register of Deeds Andrew Thompson states the consideration to have been "one dollar and other valuable considerations," Father Beyer, chaplain of St. Rose convent, announced the purchase of the Bishop's home to have been $15,000. It is anticipated that a sum in excess of half the purchase price will be used in remodeling the nurses' home.

It was also announced that plans were under way for the purchase of a residence for the bishop in an exclusive residential section but that the deal has not been consummated. An early announcement on this phase of the realty transaction is expected.

SCHOOL OPENING FINDS CHILDREN ANSWERING BELL

New Barracks Houses Children of Hogan School Along With Other Schools

Opening of school this morning was marked by a large enrollment Superintendent B. E. McCormick announced at noon.

With many changes in rooms due to the erection of barracks and transfers pending the construction of new buildings, school work started off today in remarkably smooth style. There was just a little confusion and misunderstanding in the Hogan school district, as a result of the destruction of the school by fire.

For the benefit of Hogan school children who are not acquainted with the new arrangements Mr. McCormick announced today that all children from the fifth grade down living on or south of Adams street are to attend the Webster school at Fourteenth and Redfield streets. All other children in the Hogan school district except those in the kindergarten grade are to be accommodated in the new barracks at Sixteenth and Winnebago streets.

The kindergarten class will be housed in Room 6 on the first floor of the high school building. The children can use either entrance to the building and will be given the freedom of the gymnasium for play. Every facility for the comfort and convenience of the little ones will be found in the high school building.

Local election clerks declare that it will be well along in the morning before they can finish counting the ballots in the precincts in this city.

OFFER TO FREE MACSWINEY IF IRISH SUBMIT

Premier Asks Assurance that Murders of Policemen Will Cease if Mayor of Cork is Released

MAYOR CANNOT ANSWER FOR OTHERS DECLARES CHAPLAIN

MacSwiney Reported Weaker Today and Suffering Great Pain

LONDON, Sept. 7—Terence MacSwiney, lord mayor of Cork, who has been on a hunger strike since August 12 and for several days has been in a critical condition in Brixton prison, was reported appreciably weaker this morning, but conscious and able to speak. Father Dominic, private chaplain to MacSwiney, said the prisoner was suffering intense pain in the left side of his abdomen and in the heart.

Regarding a statement by Premier Lloyd George indicating that Mayor MacSwiney probably would be released if guarantees were given that the murders of police in Ireland would cease, Father Dominic said the mayor had no authority to make any promise for the cessation of murders in Ireland, as he was only an individual Sinn Feiner.

"If the government is satisfied that murders are taking place," Father Dominic added, "why doesn't it capture the murderers and execute them?"

Offer Conditional Release

LONDON—A dispatch to the London Times from Viege, Switzerland, quotes David Lloyd George, the British prime minister, as saying that if guarantees are given that the murder of policemen in Ireland will cease the premier is convinced that Lord Mayor MacSwiney and the other hunger strikers will be released from prison.

Other special dispatches tend to confirm the interview in the Times.

According to the Times the premier said that not a single one of the deluge of appeals for clemency offered the slightest assurance that such killing would be stopped.

He added that the unconditional release of the imprisoned men would be disastrous to the morale of the Irish police and make government in Ireland impossible.

Each day as the fast of Lord Mayor MacSwiney in Brixton prison progresses there is staged by the bedside of the dying man a tragic act, which was disclosed to the Associated Press on Monday by Father Dominic of the Franciscan Capuchin order, Mayor MacSwiney's private chaplain.

Every morning food in some form or another is brought in by the prison authorities and offered to the starving prisoner in the hope that his almost uncontrollable craving will master him and that he will be tempted to eat. Every morning there is the same end to the act—MacSwiney, who is too weak to utter a spoken refusal, crushes his desire and turns his head away.

Given No Sustenance

There have been many rumors that MacSwiney was being given sustenance in drinking water or otherwise. This is indignantly denied by relatives and friends, and the Associated Press was further informed in an authoritative quarter on Monday that the prison authorities have not given the Lord Mayor any food in this manner. Father Dominic also denied that the prisoner was being fed, and added:

"Although some people say that the desire for food disappears after a few days abstinence, it is not so in Mayor MacSwiney's case. He is still hungry, but refuses to take anything.

"The lord mayor looked pale, drawn and haggard Monday morning when I administered the usual sacraments and the local rumor that he received the last sacrament is not true. MacSwiney has intervals of dizziness and is only able to speak in short gasps, owing to difficulty in breathing."

Using Casement's Quarters

Lord Mayor MacSwiney is in the same room as was occupied by Sir Roger Casement before the latter was transferred to the tower. It is a large, airy dormitory with seven beds, and there is a day and night nurse in attendance.

The prison is situated at the end of a short lane leading from the main road. This main entrance is guarded by several police, who refuse to admit any but relatives of the inmates, or those holding official permits.

Many visitors were turned away on Monday. But beyond these, the police and the coming and going of Mayor MacSwiney's relatives there is nothing to indicate the battle of wills going on behind the high walls of the jail, the outcome of which may have a far reaching effect.

In a message to sympathizers with Mayor MacSwiney in America, Mrs. MacSwiney today said: "I wish to express to all the Irish people and many sympathizers with Ireland's cause in America my deepest appreciation of the messages and cable-

STATE MEDICAL MEETING OPENS HERE TOMORROW

Over Three Hundred Doctors Expected to Attend Convention and Clinics

LEADING LIGHTS OF PROFESSION SCHEDULED TO GIVE TALKS HERE

Medics Begin to Arrive Today for the Big Meeting

The Wisconsin state medical convention which opens here tomorrow, will bring to the city a number of the leading lights of the profession, not only from Wisconsin but from distant states. From the lay public's standpoint, one of the most interesting visitors will be Dr. V. V. Anderson, medical director of the National Committee on Mental Hygiene, who will speak at an open meeting to which the public is invited tomorrow evening at the Normal school. Over 300 doctors are expected to attend the convention.

Other notables here for the convention will be Dr. Kennon Dunham, the leading expert in the country on X-ray interpretation of chest conditions; Dr. Dean Lewis of Chicago, professor of surgery at Rush Medical college and a research worker for the war department as well as one of the big surgeons at the Fort Sheridan hospital during the war; Dr. Bardeen, head of the Wisconsin University Medical school; Dr. Joseph Evans, professor of medicine at the Wisconsin university; Dr. W. F. Lorenz, medical adviser of the state board of control and head of the psychiatric institute at Mendota, and Dr. L. F. Jermain, dean of the Marquette medical school.

Dr. Gilbert E. Seaman, republican candidate for governor, will also be here, as will Dr. Hoyt Dearholt, executive head of the anti-tuberculosis society of Wisconsin.

The meetings of the convention will be open to the public at all times, although most of the talks scheduled are on technical matters. All sessions are to be held at the state normal school. Wednesday evening's session, however, at which Dr. Anderson will speak, will be on public health and of a non-technical nature. It is expected that many citizens will attend, particularly as the evening following the lecture will be devoted to a reception and "mixer" dance in the new normal school gymnasium, at which citizens will have an opportunity to play host to the visiting physicians.

The big social feature of the gathering, however, will be the excursion to be given on the Hill Thursday evening, to which the county medical society has invited La Crosse people. Box lunches containing chicken dinners "'n fixings" have been arranged for, and several novel entertainment stunts have been prepared, including vaudeville stunts by Dr. Harry Mashall. Mrs. J. F. Bartl and other well-known local performers. Dancing, of course, will be part of the fun planned by the entertainment committee of which Dr. M. A. McGarty is chairman. The boat leaves at 5 p. m.

Doctors from all over the state began arriving in the city today for the convention. Many came cross-country in their cars, the roads being generally in good condition.

Folks—give the doctors a chance.

Starting tomorrow the doctors are having their state convention here, and the local physicians want to attend the informative and instructive discussion by the experts in the profession.

So the county medical society today requested that townspeople not call them except in emergency or other imperative cases.

Although no other set speeches are planned for the trip, it is expected that the candidate will make several short talks to crowds greeting him along the way. He returns to Marion Thursday night.

POLES APPEAL TO LEAGUE OF NATIONS TO ARBITRATE DISPUTE WITH LITHUANIA

Must Declare War if Situation is Not Improved Declares Government; Demand Evacuation of Polish Territory

LONDON, Sept. 7.—The Polish government has addressed an appeal to the league of nations requesting its mediation in the Polish-Lithuanian dispute. Unless an improvement occurs in the situation Poland will be compelled to declare war on Lithuania, the appeal states.

The communication declares an unprovoked attack had been made on Polish troops by Lithuanian forces.

The league of nations is considering the appeal.

The Polish demand is, the note indicates, that the Lithuanian troops evacuate Polish territory within a few days.

Warsaw Confirms It

WARSAW, Sept. 6.—Poland is ready to submit her dispute with Lithuania over the frontier between the two countries to arbitration by the league of nations, it was announced today.

Roads To Test Soundness Of Rail Measure

WASHINGTON, Sept. 7.—Validity of transportation act provisions giving the interstate commerce commission instead of state authorities supervision over the issuance of railroad securities is to be tested in the courts, the commission was informed today during a hearing on the application of the New York Central railroad to issue $25,000,000 in seven per cent gold bonds and $25,000,000 in bonds additional to be deposited as collateral for the first.

EXPECTED RETURN OF MINERS FAILS TO MATERIALIZE TODAY

Hundred Thousand Hard Coal Workers Still Out is Report Coming from Headquarters

WILKESBARRE, Pa., Sept. 7.—Contrary to general expectation, there was no general movement of anthracite mine workers back to work today. Reports from the entire hard coal regions indicate that at least 100,000 men are still idle.

Coal company officials expressed the opinion there will be a movement to go back to work tomorrow. In some parts of the coal fields there were more men idle than last week.

The almost general tie-up is due, union officers assert, to the dissatisfaction with the award of the anthracite coal commission accepted by operators and miners last week.

The United Mine workers appealed to President Wilson to reopen the wage agreement with a view of giving the men a further increase in rates. President Wilson turned the appeal over to Secretary of Labor Wilson, and the whole mining region is expectantly awaiting word from Washington.

Probe Alabama Strike

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Sept. 7.—Governor Kilby has directed the commission, named by him to investigate the differences between coal operators and union miners in the bituminous fields of Alabama, to begin at once taking testimony of operators and miners as to the points in controversy which led to the issuance of a strike order effective today.

AMERICAN HELD BY MEXICAN BANDIT IS REPORTED AT LARGE

MEXICO CITY, Sept. 7.—W. A. Gardiner, a citizen of the United States, who was captured by Pedro Zamora, the Jalisco bandit on August 20, at Cuale, has escaped, according to official advices.

General Enrique Estrada, commanding government troops pursuing Zamora, reported to the war department that he had been advised by the commander at Autlan, that an American had arrived there and asked for an escort to bring Gardiner from a ranch some distance from town.

It was stated Gardiner took refuge at this ranch following his escape from the bandits more than a week ago. An escort was sent out for Gardiner.

COTTON ADVANCES

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—The New York Cotton exchange witnessed an excited advance at the reopening this morning.

This advance was caused by the strength of Liverpool over the holiday, less favorable crop advices, and expectations of more encouraging mill news.

Liverpool was a heavy buyer on the advance here which carried October up to 28.30 or 195 points above the closing prices of last week and within five points of the maximum permitted for a day. There was also heavy local covering.

IDEAL WEATHER MAKES BIG VOTE SURE IN STATE

Primary Day Dawns Fair and Election Officials Have Busy Time

CHIEF INTEREST CENTERS IN U. S. SENATE AND GOVERNOR RACE

Three Local Contests Attract Much Attention

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 7.—The vote in the city of Milwaukee up to noon as reported to the police department was 20,544, an increase of 3,823 over the vote up to the same hour at the spring primary. This is an increase of approximately 20 per cent, and is attributed to the women's part in the election.

IDEAL weather conditions throughout the entire state of Wisconsin is expected to result in one of the largest primary votes ever polled.

In the city of La Crosse election officials do not anticipate a completion of the count until late tonight or tomorrow morning, chiefly due to the increased number of voters by the passage of the suffrage amendment.

The polls in the city opened at 6 o'clock this morning and shortly after they were being visited by men and women. The large number of women voters in all city wards this morning indicated that here they are taking a deep interest in the various contests.

Senator Chief Fight

Chief interest in today's state election centers about the fight for the republican United States senatorial and gubernatorial nominations.

The contest in the former lies between James Thompson of La Crosse and Irvine L. Lenroot of Superior. A. C. McHenry of Oshkosh, is also a candidate as an out-and-out "wet" but his vote, it is believed, will be negligible so far as its effect on the main contest between Thompson and Lenroot.

Six candidates are in the field for governor on the republican ticket, there being no contests in other parties. John J. Blaine, La Follette candidate; Edward F. Dithmar, claiming to be a La Follette progressive; Colonel Gilbert E. Seaman, administration choice; State Senator Roy P. Wilcox, who ran close to Governor Philipp two years ago; Merlin Hull, running as a "dry", and J. N. Tittemore, farmers' candidate, all have made extensive campaigns within the last few days. The multiplicity of candidates for governor makes it difficult to forecast anything in the way of probable result.

Local Contests Hot

There are several contests for nominations for county offices, the chief of which is that between Lucien T. Reid and Stanley Gordon for district attorney. Mr. Reid is the present incumbent having served one term. Mr. Gordon is a returned service man.

For the republican nomination for sheriff, Undersheriff Ed Miller and Frank Bradley are fighting.

For the republican nomination for county clerk the contest lies between Hubert Staats and Alfred Hanson. Hanson is from Mindoro while Staats, a returned soldier, is a local product.

Charles Wachs and Abel N. Moore are contesting on the republican ticket for the office of register of deeds. Wachs is a La Crosse boy while Moore is a citizen of Onalaska and a member of the La Crosse county board.

Democrats Have Contest

A sharp race is on in the democratic ranks for the nomination for sheriff. Mike Britton, La Crosse policeman is running against John Weber, ex-sheriff. Their chief contest for supremacy seems to be on the north side where both reside.

While the large vote is expected to delay returns for many hours, the Tribune and Leader-Press will remain open all night to receive the returns.

COMMITTEE NOT FOLLOWING BEST LEAD SAYS MOORE

Cox Agent Presents List of Men Who Have Information on Governor's Charges

ASKS WHY WAYS AND MEANS CHAIRMAN IS NOT CALLED

Committee Resumes Probe After Three Day Adjournment

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 7.—The senatorial committee investigating campaign expenditures "is not seeking the best evidence" to prove Governor Cox's charges against the republican party, Edmund H. Moore, Youngstown, Ohio, the governor's personal representative, told the committee on the stand today.

Moore told Senator Kenyon there were men better able to tell of the republican plans than he or Governor Cox, and asked why Colonel William Boyce Thompson of New York, chairman of the republican ways and means committee, and "the sixty men of the paid organization" were not called.

Governor Cox has no evidence in support of his charges outside of what Moore brought to Chicago with him, the witness said. As he spoke he unfolded a massive brief case and took out a stack of papers that apparently numbered several hundred sheets.

Governor Cox sent him to Chicago, Mr. Moore said, to "give the committee the list from whom the senators could get the information to support the governor's charges." He mentioned Harry M. Glair, first assistant to Fred W. Upham, republican national treasurer, and several other employes of Upham's office.

Reiterates Statement

The chairman asked Mr. Moore if he said that the committee was afraid to call him to the stand, and if he said the committee was not seeking the evidence to prove Governor Cox's charges.

"I did not!" the witness exclaimed.

"You don't need to get angry," Senator Kenyon said.

"I am not getting angry. What I said was that you were not seeking the best evidence. And I say it again. You are not!"

Mr. Moore said he was sure that Fred W. Upham, treasurer of the republican national committee, would not testify to untruths, but he was equally sure that the republican official was a victim of either mistakes or bad bookkeeping when he testified concerning the quotas assigned various states.

Senator Kenyon read charges from Governor Cox's Wheeling speech to the effect that "powerful interests" were scheming to buy government control and from the South Bend

Moore in an extra hole match yesterday. Frazer, in a game with Van Auken, broke the course record yesterday shooting 67. Van Auken offered good competition in the match shooting 76.

The competition in the semi-finals for the cup this year is keen, all of the men being generally evenly matched. It is expected that the semi-finals will be run off today or tomorrow, eliminating two of the men, leaving two for the finals. The finals are to be played Saturday, September 11.

In two more shakes of a lamb's tail I'd have been between the sheets—but I got taken with another large idea for Camel Cigarette ads that's so bright you can phone 'em to cut the current because you just had your lamps lit!

Tell you, it's a whale of a stunt! Everybody right quiet—and hats off! NOW—far as I know or ever heard, there never has been one of those zippy slogans under that big display name "Camel". I'VE GOT ONE—get me? Put both your ears close to the ground and get the rumble of a broadside like this:

Camel

Once it meant an animal—now a Cigarette!

Wow, Pete! I'll testify that's a stoneless peach! Spread it like I've dented it in here—and you've uncorked an eyeful! Suppose you'll want to call me old Mr. Hammer because I hit the nail on the head!

And, bet real money that if this slogan stuff keeps me awake the rest of the night, I'll wire and offer it to R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co. before you hit the deck! And, I'll be spending some of the proceeds for noon eats!

In the lang-wage of Jigger Jones of Joplin, "you tell 'em old yacht, you've got the sales spirit!"

Blowing out of St. Louis at 10:12 tomorrow with a bundle of business. Off for Ohio. Get something on me mind!

SHOUT FOR JOY

LET Thy priests be clothed with righteousness; and let Thy saints shout for joy.—Psalms 132: 8, 9. O when wilt Thou come unto me?—Psalms 101: 2.

WELCOME THE DOCTORS

DOCTORS are pretty high-grade men, generally. By the nature of their calling they cultivate brains and industry. They are generally among the leading spirits of their community in matters of public welfare of all sorts, and their close touch with suffering makes them sympathetic in the human way. Doctors have a faculty for making and holding friends. Whether that is because the medical profession makes a man so, or whether it is because that sort of a man is drawn into the medical profession by natural bent we are unable to say, but the truth is generally acknowledged. It is just one of the reasons why it is probable that La Crosse men and women who accept the invitation of the county medical society to have a share in the social events of the state medical convention here this week will be mighty glad of its afterwards. From all over the state men of understanding and substance are here for professional exchanges and a bit of fun. It should be La Crosse's pleasure even more than its duty to make their visit as interesting as possible. One hopes that a great many of our people will get acquainted with the doctors at Wednesday night's meeting and reception, and on the river Thursday evening. La Crosse will enjoy it, and certainly it can be no bad thing for La Crosse to have a hundred or two fine fellows spreading word over the state that La Crosse is a good town to come to.

NEARLY RIGHT

PRECISION is not a natural human trait. It is easier to be nearly right than to be wholly right. Exactitude is the basis of modern progress; yet, mankind might have escaped it altogether. To finish a problem requires persistence. Persistence is painful; therefore habit tempts one into compromises with the mental effort which all must use to be wholly right instead of nearly right.

Professor Henri Bergson, of the College of France, the greatest living philosopher, points this out in a new collection of his essays and addresses called "Mind-Energy." Humanity owes its practice of precision, says Professor Bergson, to the fact that in a small corner of ancient Greece, the people refused to be content with being nearly right. That was 2500 years ago. The people were the Athenians. For scores of thousands of years, no race of men ever before had been discontented at being nearly right. If the Athenians had not discovered that creative joy is superior to the pain of pursuing a problem to its end, the world might still be worshipping what another Frenchman has called the cult of incompetence.

Because they did not stop at being nearly right, the Athenians established a civilization, five hundred years before the birth of Christ, which remains without a peer for intellectual efficiency. Whoever wishes a measure of his own mental development can still use the same Greek test. As the habit of being nearly right gives way to exactitude in information, so does the growth of intellect make itself known.

THE "BAR'L"

COUPLING a candidate for office with a "bar'l" is no new thing. And when that is done the idea of a willingness to expend much money for office is implied.

In the old days the mention of a "bar'l" in connection with a candidate for political preferment meant that the candidate himself had much wealth and was willing to expend it if he could be voted into office. Progress in methods has changed that. Reference to the "bar'l" now generally means that the candidate has it not, but that the party finance committee has it for him.

In 1876, Samuel J. Tilden was a democratic candidate for president. In the selection of delegates to the convention a newspaper alluded to Tilden as a man with a "bar'l", the meaning being that he was able and willing to expend great sums for his election. The word "caught on" and stuck, and for a long time was a snyonym for wealth in the case of political candidates.

Nowadays, the candidates leave it to the patriots of the parties to collect and contribute the "bar'l." Sometimes it is a hogshead. Sometimes only a small keg.

AN "OLD" MAGAZINE

TO realize how fast the world moves, pick up an "old" magazine, one as old as a child in his early 'teens, for example.

Here are Mark Twain, Henry James, W. Dean Howells as the leading authors and Howard Pyle as the leading artist, and all dead.

There are a score of other distinguished contributors and one blushes to discover he doesn't know whether they are alive or not. And what is worse, he doesn't much care.

The material is readable enough and just as entertaining as though it comprised the current number. Moreover, it seems just about as new.

The story by Mark Twain is one you could hand to a hundred people and it is a safe bet that it would be entirely strange to ninety-nine of them. The same remark is even more true of the contributions by Howells, James, by Joseph Conrad, Arthur Hadley, Alice Brown and all the rest. Practically the whole magazine could be republished today and no one would remember having read it before.

It is in the literary advertising pages that the age of the magazine shows. Of the dozens of works of "notable fiction" one is grieved to note that but two or three are remembered at all.

FINE FEATHERS

THE ostrich feather business is a bird of a business now that Dame Fashion has again taken up the plume for decorative effect among women. Importations for the last fiscal year were worth $2,500,000. This was against less than half that sum the year previous.

America's 10,000 ostriches have cause therefore to strut the peacock strut because of their kiting value. The world's ostrich plume business now runs up to nearly $20,000,000. The first ostrich farms in the United States were those of California, along about 1882. And it is still quite the thing for tourists to have their pictures taken by the always present camera man in proximity to the ostriches. "Wish you were here" is written on thousands of ostrich postcards mailed from California each season.

But now, besides the California farms, the business has extended to Arizona, Alabama, Texas and Florida while there are other sporadic and experimental farms in various parts of the country.

The feathers that become plumes are picked or plucked from the living bird every eight months, and the value of the crop is between $25 and $100. As the birds live sometimes for fifty years, they pay well.

These days when a frisky old man is asked how he feels, the proper reply is "Just gland."

Photographs of Trail's End reveal no front porch—which may account for Cox's traveling campaign.

Foch is coming to the United States for a visit, thus renewing the controversy over the correct pronunciation of his name.

The anti-suffragists should write it—Gnashville.

THE ACCUSING EYE

BY CLARISSA MACKIE

Miss Jarvis twisted the solitaire diamond around on the third finger of her left hand until the glittering stone was buried in her soft palm. Then she stared at it with dull resentment in her lovely eyes—the plain gold band of the inner circlet looked like a wedding ring. With a swift, ruthless gesture she tore it from her finger and sent it spinning across the room.

From a dark corner of the rich carpet the jewel glowed at her like an angry accusing eye—a questioning eye! "Why?" it seemed to ask. "Why did you lead James Meade on if you did not love him? Why did you accept this ring from him and promise to marry him? Was it because he is rich and influential and you were afraid to wait for Paul—Paul with his fearless courage during the war—his medals of honor—his crippled foot—Paul coming home from war with joyous heart to find fallen fortunes and to learn that his promised wife had changed her mind and was going to marry an older man—one safe and rich with the making of war-time profits?"

"No—no—no—" whispered Elsie, covering her shamed eyes with her ringless fingers; "but I couldn't hamper Paul with my support when he had to begin all over again—"

The eye winked derisively. "Tell that to the marines—but not to Paul Browning," it seemed to say.

Elsie regarded the jewel with rebellious eyes. The door pushed open and a man entered. "Your mother said you were in here," he said cheerfully, as he leaned over and kissed her unwilling lips. "You look awfully in the blues, dear. Come and drive with me—I want to show you a house in Westchester."

"I don't like Westchester. James, Long Island is much smarter, and besides there are some lovely old places there."

"Too old, some of them."

"I love old places," she said defiantly. "Little old-fashioned houses hugging the water, with quaint gardens and giant locusts—and—"

"You are describing the old Browning place, Elsie," he said coldly.

There was silence between them for a moment until his glance found the glittering ring in the corner.

"Your ring?" he asked with lifted brows as he brought it to her.

"It slipped off—no—I threw it there, James. I am sorry—but I am cross this morning—forgive me," she cried penitently. He smiled and kissed her, but his eyes were troubled as he put it on her finger.

Presently they were gliding along the Westchester roads under a glorious summer sky. Elsie admired the beautiful house her lover had chosen; it was so perfect in every detail that only a carping spirit could find fault with it, and Elsie was sore-hearted, not mean.

"Now we are going to look at a place on Long Island," he said as he turned the car toward the city. "First, we will have a bite to eat."

Ellie was surprised when they stopped before a modest restaurant on a crowded thoroughfare. James Meade usually patronized the best hotels and when they lunched it was either in some tea room of Elsie's choice or a fashionable hotel restaurant.

"You will find the food particularly good here," he apologized as they entered, "and the service is unsurpassed—we won't have to wait."

This proved to be the case but Elsie ate little beyond the first spoonfuls of soup; her eyes caught sight of a familiar figure across the room—a straight young form garbed as a waiter, but with a pathetic limp. The Accusing Eye winked at her again as she dropped her spoon with a sickening realization that Paul, her splendid young lover, had come to this!

Fortunately, he did not see them and later when they were again in the car she turned to Meade with blazing eyes. "You did it intentionally, James; how could you?" she demanded.

"It is better that you should know and see things just as they are," he said gravely, but the girl only smiled bitterly and turned away her head. She did not speak to him again for a long time, as they threaded the city streets, crossed the bridge and finally emerged upon the Merrick road. Then she closed her eyes to keep back the tears that wanted to come. At one moment she yearned to give Meade his ring and hasten back to Paul—Paul Browning, a waiter in a restaurant—Paul who had fought for her as he had for thousands of others like her—she wanted to snatch him away and work for him; she wanted to do some menial labor for him—

"Here we are," said Meade cheerily as he stopped the car, but when Elsie opened her eyes she could not see until the tears had brimmed over. Meade pressed his handkerchief to her face and at last she smiled waveringly at him. "I am such a goose," she said.

"A dear delightful goose," he agreed as he lifted her down and pushed open a white painted gate. "And what do you think of this, Elsie?" He stood apart with folded arms and watched her face change from sweet gravity to wonder, and then joy. The joy quickly changed to resentment.

"Not this place, James—not Paul's old home—"

"You love it?" he asked.

"For his sake," she said bravely, "I would leave my own luxurious home—I would give you up, with all that means—only to be with him and wait upon him always—I don't care how poor—how lowly—forgive me, James, dear, I am so unhappy and I have been so wicked!"

He held her very close in his arms until she had sobbed out her grief, and while his voice was brave and his eyes were hurt. He truly loved Elsie and he did not want her without the love that she had to give some one and above all he was generous and he wanted her to be happy.

"I couldn't buy this place if I wanted to, dear," he said at last. "your future husband has too much grit to let it go—I've tried to buy him out through my agent and he wouldn't sell. Unknown to him—I've had an opening made for him in my cousin's bank—and the ring—that is my wedding gift to you and you are to dispose of it and buy some scrubbing brushes and things for your house—I'm going now, Elsie, and you must be happy and make him happy too! Some day, I'm coming out to see if you are living up to it! I think I hear him coming now—he has a motorcycle, you know. Good-by!" He wrung her hand, dashed down the steps and into his machine; in a moment there was a cloud of dust on the shore road. From the other direction came the rattling whirr of a motorcycle. Elsie went down to the gate and held it open as Paul came through, afoot limping, his eyes ashine. "Elsie," he cried incredulously, "You—waiting for me? Why, I dream of this every day, but—"

She crept into his arms. "I am the dreams come true," she whispered.

WINNEBAGO HIGH FIGHTS $55.00 WEEK NEWSPAPER THAT CREAKY PROPOSES

(Second Day of Story)

"Creaky Creel I know you must be mistaken. You can't be right"—it was Majorie Masters, talking—"My cousin in Brockton says her high school magazine costs only $25.00 a month to print. And, Creaky, it is perfectly lovely. It is as big as this notebook and has a beautiful blue and gold cover. I just love blue and gold."

"Sorry, Marjorie," rejoined Creaky, "I visited all the print-shops in Winnebago with this 'dummy' Saturday and the best price I can get is $55.00 a week and a promise that it will cost more soon. And maybe they can't get the paper to print it on either. Look's bad to me. We can't afford it."

"Fifty-five dollars a week! Why, it is positively absurd. Let me see that 'dummy' again."

Scissors and Paste "Dummy"

The "dummy" under discussion was a homely scissors-and-paste imitation of what Creaky had hoped a Winnebago High School weekly newspaper would be. It consisted of one plain piece of paper folded to make four pages, 10x13 inches each. On each page were pasted four newspaper columns, 12 inches long.

"Oh, Creaky, let's forget it."

But Creaky didn't forget. Right after school that evening he carried the same "dummy" into the football dressing room.

"What, $55.00 a week for 500 copies of a sheet like that! Not me."

"Your plan is bunk, Creaky," chimed in Sunset Schneider. "Give me that thing to wipe the mud off my shoes."

"Something Wrong"

"Creaky," solemnly assured Barrel Timpkins, the fat but practical center, "Creaky, there is something wrong, something wrong with your plan."

"Aw, forget it," with this Buck Winters, the captain, ended the discussion.

But Creaky didn't forget and didn't quit. In the columns of the Daily News that night his keen gray eyes found four scattered items which he combined into one idea—an idea that sent him to bed reassured and happy.

Maps That Live

Is there any place where more geography is written on one page than in a geography text book?

Yes, there is!

There is more geography in one little map than in any page of reading matter ever written.

If a map is rightly used there is something about it that sticks. It does more than tell a story; it paints a landscape. That dot is not a dot, but a bustling city; that line is not a line, but a beautiful river; that little blue spot is not a spot, but a busy, resounding harbor. It is all a moving picture. Ask your brother who was "Over There" if it isn't so.

Take a cheap map of the United States and paste it on a piece of good durable cardboard. Cut it into 48 pieces by cutting out each state. See if you can put it together again. You will learn more geography than by a day and night of reading.

"I PROMISED"—MODEST COMMENT OF GIRL WHO SAVES DROWNING ELSIE

(True Story of a Real Girl)

During a Sunday school picnic at Buckeye Lake, near Columbus, O., an overloaded row boat capsized. Of the five boys and girls in the boat, Elsie Sanderson, 10, was the only one who could not swim.

When the boat turned over, Agnes Deutch, 14, who had promised Elsie's mother she would look after the little girl at the picnic, dived into the water and catching hold of Elsie as the latter came up for the second time, swam back to shore with her.

Agnes was standing on the beach when the accident occurred.

"I promised Mrs. Sanderson I'd take care of Elsie," was Agnes' only comment, when complimented for her bravery.

Jean's Joke For Girls

"I had to stay after school tonight," confessed Jean.

"For what?" inquired her mother.

"Teacher asked me to name the four seasons."

"Well that was an easy question; couldn't you answer?"

"Yes, I said 'salt, pepper, mustard, ginger.'"

BOYHOOD STORIES OF FAMOUS MEN

A ragged little boy, about twelve years old, sat on a bench near London bridge. He was telling a ragged little girl the stories he made up about the queer people he saw in the London slums.

All day the boy worked in a blacking factory, pasting oil paper covers on blacking boxes. In the evenings he visited his father and mother, who had been put into the Marshalsea prison because they could not pay their debts.

He earned only seven shillings, or 62½ cents a week. Often he was hungry. The girl, his only companion of his own age, was maid of all work in a London lodging house.

The boy was Charles Dickens (1812-1870). When he grew up he put the ragged little girl into one of the most famous novels ever written. He made her "The Marchioness" in "The Old Curiosity Shop."

Millions of people employ it. And the glistening teeth seen everywhere show what it means. See what it means to you.

A film combatant

Most tooth troubles are now traced to film—to that viscous coat you feel. Film clings to teeth, enters crevices and stays.

The ordinary tooth paste does not end film. So the film remains—much of it—and may do a ceaseless damage. Nearly all people suffer from it, more or less.

It is the film-coat that discolors, not the teeth. Film is the basis of tartar. It holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay.

Millions of germs breed in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea. So, despite the tooth brush, all these troubles have been constantly increasing.

New methods now

Dental science, after years of searching, has found new ways to fight film. All have been proved by many clinical tests. They are so efficient that leading dentists everywhere advise them.

These methods are combined now in a dentifrice called Pepsodent. It has brought a new era in teeth cleaning. This is the tooth paste we urge you to try.

Watch the new effects

The use of Pepsodent at once reveals many new effects.

One ingredient is pepsin. One multiplies the starch digestant in the saliva, to digest starch deposits that cling. One multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, to neutralize mouth acids.

Two factors directly attack the film. One of them keeps the teeth so highly polished that film cannot easily cling.

Pepsodent is the new-day tooth paste, complying with all modern requirements. It does what never before was done. You should learn its benefits at once.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. Watch the teeth whiten as the film-coat disappears.

Every one in your family needs Pepsodent daily, and a week will prove this to you. Cut out the coupon now.

LA CROSSE

After viewing Blanche Sweet's latest production, "The Deadlier Sex" at the La Crosse yesterday, we heartily approve of the "deadlier sex." At least they know how to get what they want, and if they get something they hadn't bargained for—such as the love of an enemy—they accept the inevitable with womanly graciousness.

"The Deadlier Sex" is a comedy drama, the humor runs through it like a gurgling brook through a strip of woodland. In spite of its title—which though it might be considered misleading is really apropos—it is clean wholesome entertainment.

The story concerns the romance of business enemies. The girl plays fair but the man's ideas of a square deal are somewhat distorted by his lust for money. To safeguard her stockholders the girl kidnaps the man and takes him to the Maine woods, where he becomes acquainted with a lot of nature's beauty. Without knowing who she is he falls in love with the girl, and when he learns the truth the climax comes hard and fast, with the biggest laugh of all at the end of the picture. It's the best thing Blanche Sweet has done since "The Unpardonable Sin."

MAJESTIC

Prohibition is no laughing matter to many of us, but even an ex-barkeep couldn't sit the picture at the Majestic. It's called "The Six Best Cellars" and the plot concerns some of the amusing complications in the wake of the dry law in a fashionable community.

Mr. Washburn has the role of Henry Carpenter, who has pretended to his friends that he has a cellar full of drinkables in order to keep in the social swim. Just as his bluff is about to be called at a dinner party, he being the host, a hidden supply of rare wine is discovered in the cellar of a W. C. T. U. aunt of his. But, alas! the bottles are empty. However, Henry saves the day by launching into a tirade against Demon Rum, which unexpectedly puts him in right with the straight-laced element of the community, so that when a boni-fide discovery is made in the aunt's cellar Henry is left in quandary, which is left to the audience to decide.

BIJOU

"Duds," the latest Tom Moore picture that opened at the Bijou yesterday deals with the smuggling of the famous Sullania diamond to America. Tom Moore portrays the part of a discharged army officer who is engaged to track down the smugglers. His work proved extremely dangerous and the picture gives many thrills. It affords Tom Moore many opportunities to reveal his qualities as a dramatic actor, as well as to imbue his part with the charm of his personality. In the end he wins the girl and captures the smugglers, but not without a hard fight. It's the best thing Mr. Moore has done to date.

CASINO

Priscilla Dean in "Pretty Smooth" is the attraction at the Casino today and tomorrow. Miss Dean is cast as a maid for a wealthy family, who is in secret league with a band of crooks. The house is robbed and she is blamed for it. Surprising incidents follow and the way the pictude ends is a surprise to all. It is one of the best of crook plays.

RIALTO

"The Best of Luck" has been reviewed in these columns before. It is one of the best melodramas of the year, and should please all both old and young who see it.

STRAND

Marguerite Clark in "Come Out of the Kitchen" is a story of domestic troubles that arise when the maid suddenly walks out and lets the mistress of the house get her own meals. Although she knows nothing about cooking she decided to learn. The story is crowded with comedy and will cause a great deal of laughter. Eugene O'Brien as the husband adds to the attraction.

BAY STATE VOTERS PICK CANDIDATES

Massachusetts Balloting on State and Congressional Nominees

BOSTON, Mass., Sept. 7.—Massachuserts balloted today to select the state and congressional tickets that will be voted on at the November election. It was the first state primary in which women took part, and they had registered in the approximate proportion of one woman to every four men.

One woman was assured of a place on the democratic state ticket, Mrs. Alice E. Cram of Boston being unopposed for the nomination for auditor.

Lieutenant Governor Channing H. Cox was unopposed for the republican nomination for governor.

The democratic candidates for the nomination were Richard H. Long of Framingham, the party nominee in 1918 and 1919, and State Senator John J. Walsh of Boston.

Republican congressmen, who were opposed for the nomination, include Frederick H. Gillett, speaker of the house.

Broadway's Regained Brilliance

Broadway, New York City, through additional electric displays is taking on the appearance of one solid blaze of illumination. Competition among the big fellows is said to be responsible for the new impetus that apparently has no limit. The designs and clever flasher arrangements are actually wonderful. The guaranteed circulation of these massive advertisements could be counted in the millions and aside from their earnings capacity are a powerful asset to New York City, especially in the theatre district.

FACTORY SEIZURE MOVEMENT SPREADS THROUGHOUT ITALY

Four Hundred Metal Works Now in Hands of the Workers and Mechanics

GENERAL OFFENSIVE AGAINST ALL INDUSTRY THREATENED

Government Making Special Efforts to Preserve Order

ROME, Sept. 7.—Government officials will reopen negotiations with the general industrial conference at Milan Thursday with a view to solving the problem presented by the seizure by workers of metal factories throughout Italy.

It is estimated 400 of the largest metal works in Italy have been occupied by the mechanics and workers, and the movement is expanding, threatening to extend to the extreme southern end of the peninsula. Steps have been taken by the government to preserve order during the period when a general offensive against all industries is threatened.

Strikers here believed last night that an effort would be made by the police to take possession of some plants that had been occupied by workers. They sounded an alarm and immediately crowds of women and children rushed to the occupied plants to join relatives. This, according to the police, indicates the strikers have agreed, in case of an attack to protect themselves by the presence of women and children. All night armored cars and armed cyclists patrolled the streets and machine guns were placed in dominating positions along thoroughfares, while the idly curious were driven from the streets by carbineers.

In some plants near Turin, the workers have broken open safes and taken money to pay the wages they claim are due them, says a dispatch. At the Fiat Automobile works, strong boxes have been rifled and documents and correspondce for many years have been taken, the newspaper says. Altogether, 149 Turin factories, which employ thousands of workers, are in the hands of the men.

Tears at the Wedding.

At a Persian wedding the gentlemen take off their shoes at the door. The ladies squat on their side of the room to await the bride's coming. She invariably appears with reddened features and swollen eyes, for she is expected to cry for a week before the ceremony. Her wedding gifts from the company consist of such practical trifles as papers of pins and cakes of soap.

Hair Curling Troubles Are Over—Read This

Have you heard about the newest way to keep the hair in curl? If not, by all means, cut out these simple directions and try this wonderful method. Procure a new tooth brush and a few ounces of plain liquid silmerine from your druggist. Apply enough of the liquid with the brush to moisten the hair from root to tip just before doing it up. You will be quite astonished when you find you have such lovely waves and curls they appear altogether natural, instead of having been artificially acquired. Best of all, the waviness will last very much longer than it would otherwise.

Your hair, of course, will have more "body" and fluffyness than where the drying, singeing, waving iron is used. It will appear glossier and livelier, for silmerine has proved equally desirable as a dressing for the hair. You'll find it pleasant to use, and it will leave no sticky, greasy or streaky trace.

After Vacation Peel Your Discolored Sink

Women returning from the seaside or country, with browned, reddened or freckled skins will be wise in immediately taking up the mercolized wax treatment. Weatherbeaten skin had best come off, for no amount of "beautifying" will ever make it pretty to look at. The surest, safest, easiest way to shed the despoiled cuticle is with the treatment suggested. Put the wax on before retiring, as you would cold cream, and rinse it off next morning with warm water. Minute particles of scarf skin peel off day by day, gradually showing the healthy, youthful skin beneath. One ounce of mercolized wax obtainable at any drug store, is enough to make any discolored or spotted complexion clear, white and satiny soft. Its action is so gentle no harm is caused and the face shows no trace of its use.

Burning heat, irritating winds and dirt are such wrinkle-makers that the daily use of the following astringent-tonic lotion at this season is highly advisable: Powdered saxolite, one ounce, dissolved in witch hazel, one-half pint. Used as a face bath this is a splendid wrinkle remover and preventive.

The artist never winced under the blow. "These are not ostriches," he said. "They are angels."—Dallas News.

ISSUES OF CAMPAIGN GREATER THAN PARTY SAYS GOVERNOR COX

Candidate Urges Independent Thought on Part of Voters in Coming Election

COX SCHEDULED FOR THREE ADDRESSES IN NORTH DAKOTA

Will Speak at Grand Forks, Devil's Lake and Fargo

GRAND FORKS, N. D. Sept. 7—North Dakota today received from Governor Cox, the democratic campaign doctrines. The presidential candidate opened his campaign in this state here today with a message on the league of nations and other paramount issues.

Two other addresses were on the governor's itinerary today, one at Devil's Lake about noon, with the principal address in the state tonight at Minot. Several rear platform speeches were arranged.

To his early morning audience here, Governor Cox flayed the "senatorial oligarchy" and declared Senator Harding, his republican opponent, "was its reactionary candidate." The governor declared the republican senate leaders had been in a conspiracy, to defeat the treaty.

Urging independent thought and action by the American electorate, Governor Cox emphasized he was not making a partisan campaign, asserting that the issues transcend party consideration this fall.

The league, the governor said, was secured by the force of the American arms and he reiterated that American civilians now have the duty of putting into force what "our boys won." He denounced the alleged republican plan for a separate peace with Germany and urged disarmament, provided, he said, under the treaty.

Both Have Joys and Sorrows.

It's hard to tell which is the more expensive—the withering contempt of a woman with half a dozen children for the woman who has none or the pity of the woman who has none for the one who has half a dozen.

CEDAR POINT, O.—Jack Britton of New York, welterweight champion, easily won the decision over Ray Bronson, Sandusky, in a ten-round bout.

speech, that so far as republican contributions were concerned, "the sky is the limit." He also read a Cox statement that $500,000 had been raised in Ohio, in "the twinkling of an eye."

Describes G. O. P. Organization

In answering Senator Kenyon's direct question for names of men who knew about the Ohio fund, Mr. Moore went into a long explanation of his understanding of the republican campaign fund organization. He said it was headed by Col. Thompson and had, as state chairman, men whom the republican bulletin described as "of commanding influence."

State chairmen, he said, appointed chairmen of local ways and means committee.

"I found that usually in Ohio these local chairmen were manufacturers," said Mr. Moore.

Fund Collectors Paid.

The witness reiterated the charges that specific quotas were assessed against local communities and said: "But these local organizations were largely 'scenery.' The real workers for funds were paid men headed by Harry M. Blair, assistant to Mr. Upham."

He said "Blair had under him certain divisional directors" in charge of sections of the country.

"These are the professional money raisers," said Mr. Moore.

"To the public these paid directors are camouflaged as 'executive secretaries of the ways and means committee'," said the witness.

A "battalion of moppers-up" is also a part of the republican finance organization, according to Mr. Moore. He said these men went in after the organization headed by Col. Thompson had collected from "the cream list."

Paper in Shorthand For Indians

Probably the strangest publication in the world is the Kamloops "Wawa," a paper printed entirely in shorthand for the British Columbia Indians in the Frazer river district. The idea of the paper belongs to Monsignor Le Jeune, a FrenchCanadian priest, who works among the Indians. He had difficulty in noting down the sounds of the words spoken by the Indians and bethought himself of shorthand signs and found them suitable to the task. The Indians became interested in this "talk language" and studied it until, they mastered it. Then the priest wrote various parts of the gospels in this language. Later the Indians showed a desire to know the things of the day, and the priest turned out a daily bulletin on a mimeograph. This paper sold out so quickly each week that he found it worth while to have type cast and the weekly printed on the presses of a journal in the nearest town, Kamloops. Today the paper has a circulation of 3,500 copies every week, and carries a lot of advertising matter.

grams I have received from them ever since my husband started hunger striking twenty-five days ago. In contrast with those among the English people who proclaim themselves sympathetic to elementary justice being done to my husband and who content themselves with words and appeals, Ireland's sympathizers in America have taken their line of action in an economic boycott as shown in the withdrawal of policies from English insurance companies and a refusal to handle English shipping. This is likely to bring home to the minds of Lloyd George and the English government what may be the effect throughout the world of the doing to death of my husband in an English jail."

Look to U. S. for Aid

"America is more capable than any other country of forcing her recent ally, England, to conform to elementary principles of justice regarding Ireland; and I and my husband's other relatives are buoyed up by the hope and confident expectation that the action so far taken in some centers in the United States will rapidly spread through the continent of America.

"Terence MacSwiney is not sacrificing himself in a personal protest, but because he realizes that his case symbolizes Ireland's case, and for the great principle of Irish freedom he is willing to sacrifice his life, if need be. We who suffer so keenly with him, seeing his young and hopeful life gradually ebbing from his body, are equally prepared to bear our great suffering and sorrow for the sake of the land we love."

Mrs. MacSwiney, speaking to the Associated Press correspondent with composure, declared today:

"Yes, I am positive he will see his task through. Of course it is only his conviction he is fighting for the ideal that has enabled him to survive. I am fully reconciled to bearing of his death. His battle is mine, for it is one I took on myself when I married him three years ago while he was in England under a deportation order."

Mrs. MacSwiney is a slender, blue-eyed, plainly dressed woman of youthful appearance and spends hours daily in the London office of the Irish Self-Determination league writing letters and receiving newspaper correspondents. Shortly after noon, Mrs. MacSwiney goes to Brixton jail and sits three hours holding her husband's hand and occasionally returning a word of consolation in answer to his now scarcely audible murmurings.

CANDIDACY OF MOSES CENTER OF INTEREST IN NEW HAMPSHIRE

Senator's Stand on League of Nations and Suffrage Attacked by Opponents

CONCORD, N. H. Sept 7—The candidacy of Senator George H. Moses for renomination by the republicans of New Hampshire was of outstanding interest in today's primary for United States senator, congress and governor. The league of nations, suffrage, and the tariff were issues in the pre-primary campaign waged by Mr. Moses and his opponent, Huntley N. Spaulding.

The Spaulding forces exerted great efforts to capture the women's vote for their candidate on the strength of Senator Moses' steadfast opposition to woman suffrage.

Senator Moses, who was one of the irreconcilables on the league of nations issue, received the support of those opposed to the league in any form, while republican friends of the league came out for Spaulding, who favored the league with the Lodge reservations.

The prohibition question was brought into the democratic campaign by Albert W. Noone, who entered the field for both the senatorial and gubernatorial nominations on a wet platform. He was opposed by Raymond B. Stevens, former vice chairman of the shipping board, and former congressman, for the senatorial nomination, and to Charles E. Tilton for the nomination for governor.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS ENJOY FINE OUTING IN PETTIBONE PARK

Lodges of Five Cities Unite in Happy Event in the City of La Crosse

One of the largest attended and most enjoyable fraternal picnics of the year was the joint outing of Winona, Bangor, Sparta, Viroqua and La Crosse Knights of Pythias held in Pettibone park Sunday.

Several hundred persons attended the event, large delegations coming by auto and train from the surrounding cities. A big family dinner was served at noon in the park, and the afternoon was devoted to races and other outdoor sports. Handsome prizes donated by knights in the various cities were awarded the winners of the events.

Visitors were impressed with the beauties of the park and many expressed a desire to have the joint picnic made an annual event.

SAFETY CARS
SAFETY - SPEED - COMFORT

We have pointed out in a large way the obvious advantages of the one man street car with automatic equipment, eight of which will be received brand new from the factory and placed in operation on La Crosse streets this month.

Although these cars do accomplish a wonderful saving in platform man power and in fuel, this saving is not the only reason why they carry only one operative each.

A second man on each car would be entirely superfluous.

These equipments so interact automatically that:

1. The doors will not open until car has come to a full stop.
2. The car will not start until the doors are closed.
3. The power will go off, the brakes will apply instantaneously, and the tracks will be sanded the moment the operator of a moving car fails to bear down on the controller handle of the dead man type.

There are more than 3,000 of these cars in use in various parts of the United States.

Nearly always they are making better, faster schedules than the two-man cars which they replaced.

In the few cases where the schedules of the new cars are slower, the reason can always be found in the negligence of people who have failed to provide themselves with the exact fare.

The car is idle while the operator is making change.

When you ask the operator to count coins, you not only delay yourself, but every other patron of the car.

In a great majority of cases, people have found it no inconvenience to provide themselves with the exact change.

These are the cases in which the one-man cars are found to be safer, faster and more comfortable than the old type.

With your co-operation in this matter we will provide the best street car service La Crosse ever has known and serviceas good as any city in the United States enjoys.

DEMPSEY SCORES KNOCKOUT BLOW IN THIRD ROUND

DEMPSEY STOPS CHALLENGER IN SHORT ORDER

St. Paul Battler Takes the Count in Third Round of Battle With the Powerful Champion

RECORD CROWD WITNESSES MATCH AT BENTON HARBOR

Miske Floored in Second Round of Fight With Right Punch to Body

BENTON HARBOR, Mich., Sept. 7.—Jack Dempsey knocked out Billy Miske in the third round of their scheduled ten round bout for the heavyweight championship of the world here Monday afternoon. The end came after one minute and thirteen seconds of fighting in that round. A perfectly timed, accurately directed and powerfully delivered right cross to the jaw laid the St. Paul challenger low for the full count.

As 15,000 persons, crazed by enthusiasm, gave way to long pent-up enthusiasm, while hundreds that were nearest the ring strove vainly to batter their way through the cordon of Michigan state constabulary that surrounded the ring to lift the champion to their shoulders and carry him triumphantly from the scene of his memorable victory, Jack Dempsey bent over the prostrate form of his opponent and tenderly raised his still unconscious rival. It was the champion who deposited the limp bulk that but a few seconds before had been a fighting machine named Miske in the chair.

While the challenger's seconds dazedly administered the first aid to their beaten idol, Dempsey stood by. He seemed to regret that he had been forced to drive over the crushing blow that had scattered Miske's long cherished championship aspirations never to be recovered as long as the powerful hulk of Jack Dempsey parades the main highway of pugilism. Miske has had his fling and the dream which for so long had been his aspiration and ambition has been dissolved.

When he opened his eyes after Referee Jim Dougherty had tolled off the fatal ten and his dazed senses had cleared sufficiently to permit him to grasp what had happened, Miske realized that his work had been in vain, that the goal he had set for himself had been removed beyond reach; that the mantle of champion of the world would never drape his broad shoulders.

The end came suddenly, but it was not unexpected. As early as the first round it was apparent that Dempsey was destined to emerge from the ring with the championship crown still tilted jauntily on his bronzed brow. It was apparent that not only would he win, but that he would win decisively and that all question of superiority would be dispelled.

In the first round, after they had been sparring for about a minute and a half, Dempsey set himself and drove one of his now famous straight pile driving lefts into Miske's body. The blow landed just under the heart. The grunt the challenger emitted could be heard all around the ringside. He winced with pain and fell into a clinch. Tenaciously he held on while Referee Dougherty tugged and pulled trying to break them. It looked then as if the end had come, but Miske weathered the storm and managed to last out the round.

First Knockdown

It was in the second round that Miske went down for the first time. Incidentally, it was the first time that he had been floored in the eight years that he had been fighting. As they came out of a clinch Dempsey stepped quickly forward and sank a right into Miske's hurting ribs under the heart. The challenger dropped in his tracks.

His face was distorted in pain, and as Referee Dougherty jumped between him and Dempsey and began to tick off the fleeting seconds Miske rolled his eyes almost pleadingly up to the official. Almost as quickly as he had gone down he recovered enough strength in his legs to rise and, instead of taking full advantage of a count of nine, he struggled to his feet at the count of three. Dempsey hesitated for a brief second and lost a chance to end the bout with another punch.

Miske fell into a clinch and held on as long as he possibly could. Dempsey, aided by the referee, finally wriggled himself clear of Miske's embrace, but, just as Dempsey set himself to deliver what undoubtedly would have been the finishing blow the bell sounded.

Miske staggered to his corner exhausted, but his recuperative powers were remarkable. The minute's rest seemed to make a new man of him.

As the pair met in the center of the ring the St. Paul boxer shifted from a position with his left hand extended to one with his right hand forward and unleashed a left hook to the jaw that would have done credit to a much fresher athlete. It landed flush on the champion's chin. Taken wholly by surprise by this unexpected display of regained strength by Miske, Dempsey stepped quickly back.

After sizing up Miske for a second, Dempsey stepped sprightly forward. He was as fresh as when the bout started. He flicked a light left in Miske's face. It was a feeler. It served its purpose. Jack wanted to be sure that Miske was still hittable. Quickly, Dempsey followed this lead with a vicious left hook to the chin. Miske staggered backward to his own corner and then collapsed full length on the canvas.

Finishing Punch

Dempsey was standing calmly near the ropes at the center of one side of the ring. The champion was intently watching his rival. There was no glare of viciousness in his eyes. They had simply the look of a business man studying a situation. Not even the smile of victory flickered at the corners of his mouth. If he heard the cheering of the thousands he gave no outward sign of it. He waited patiently for Miske to rise and then set himself to put a merciful end to the game struggle Miske was waging.

As Miske regained his feet he gazed dazedly over the vast throng. He did not realize where he was. He did not know that stepping lightly but determinedly toward him was Jack Dempsey with right fist clenched within his five ounce glove poising himself to deliver the blow that would end it all. Miske never glanced at him.

The punch crashed over Miske's left shoulder. There was nothing to impede its progress. The challenger was beyond the stage of being able to make any effort, no matter how futile, to block it. It landed, and Miske dropped to the floor with this right arm curled under his head. There he lay like one dead while the referee's arm slowly rose and fell as he droned off the count.

After the knockout it was reported that one of Miske's ribs on the left side had been broken by the terrific punch he received in the first round. Promoter Fitzsimmons had him examined by two physicians. Before they left the arena they agreed there was no fracture. His ribs were bruised and his jaw was very sore, and he had a terrific headache. Otherwise he was none the worse for his experience.

The first thing that Dempsey did after the bout was to telegraph his mother. "Everything o. k. Love to Effie," is what he wired. Effie is his sister.

"MIKE" ANDERBERG WINS HONORS IN MILWAUKEE MARATHON SWIM MONDAY

A., journeyed to Milwaukee Labor day in time to don his swimming togs and place second in the "Y" marathon swim held there yesterday. Packman and Ahrens, local swimmers, were also in the meet, placing eleventh and twelfth. Bud Fontain of Milwaukee, won the race making the mile still water swim in 22-45-3. "Mike's" time was 25-2. That La Crosse has a veteran swimmer is evidenced by the fact that the local man hit the tape ahead of all of the Chicago and big city competitors in the open marathon yesterday.

NELSON'S WIN FROM GENOANS IN NINTH INNING YESTERDAY

Tanke's Double in Final Frame Scores Johnson for the Winning Run

THREE HITS ALLOWED VISITORS MADE IN THE SECOND INNING

Johnson and Tanke Batting Features in Game

With the score a tie after the first two innings of the game, Tanke, one of the main springs of the Nelson Clothing company team, scored a double in the last half of the ninth inning yesterday and brought in the run that gave the north siders the long end of a 3 to 2 score with the Genoa aggregation at Copeland park yesterday afternoon. Johnson and Tanke were both in batting form in yesterday's game, each taking two singles and a double out of five times at bat.

The Nelsons scored two runs in the first inning, and Genoa came back with two in the second, tying the score in the early stages of the game, and not until the ninth inning were the locals able to "get through" for the winning run. In the last half of the ninth, Fitzke struck out. Johnson singled and Beranek followed with a strike out, making two men down. Krause came in with a single and Tanke's double following him scored Johnson for the winning run.

The three only hits allowed the visitors in the game were made in the second inning and the only man that saw first base after that inning was Theis, who walked in the eighth. Theis was touched for twelve hits by the locals. The fielding of both teams was excellent, and the one error of the match was made by Freng, second baseman for the Nelsons. Score:

WHEN I was a kid,
I USED to believe,
THE JUDGE next door,
WOULD PUT me in jail,
FOR PLAYING hookey,
OR SWIPING apples,
AND I really behaved,
WHEN HE was around,
AND EVEN today,
I'M A little scared.
OF THE stern old boy,
SO IN his office,
THE OTHER day,
I HAD to wait,
AND WANTED to smoke,
AND I was afraid,
THE JUDGE would get sore,
BUT I took the chance,
AND LIT a cigarette,
AND THE judge came in,
AND LOOKED at me,
AS THOUGH I'd been caught,
BURGLING HIS safe,
AND HE came up,
WITH A solemn frown,
AND SAID, "Young man,
NO SMOKING here.
UNLESS THE old boy,
IS SMOKING too."

SCENIC HIGHWAY GETS A WELCOME IN BROWNSVILLE

Attraction of Down River Village Make this Important Point on Route

(Special to The Tribune.)

BROWNSVILE, Minn., Sept. 7.—"Hats off to Brownsville, Minn., gateway to Minnesota on the Mississippi River Scenic Highway," exclaimed A. L. Higgins, cashier of the Brownsville State bank, and secretary-treasurer of the Brownsville Unit No. 24 of the Mississippi Scenic River Highway, to a company of Brownsville citizens today when it became known that Brownsville's support of the scenic highway is on such a basis as to entitle her to upwards of 800 votes in the national convention to be held in St. Louis in a few weeks.

Brownsville is one of the oldest towns on the upper Mississippi river. As the river year after year has seen traffic dwindle until today there are no boats making regular trips to Brownsville residents of some nearby towns have been unkind enough in illustrating their remarks to use the phrase "as dead as Brownsville." In the old days Brownsville was a bustling, bustling port of call for packet boats and freighters that plied the Mississippi. Nobody ever thought it necessary to build roads north and south into and out of Brownsville and the only road of any account used to lead to Caledonia and the west. Steamboats would land much freight at Brownsville and it was transported inland in a westerly direction. Then came the steam railroad and slowly but surely one after one the steamboats disappeared until one day Brownsville awoke and found herself almost isolated from the outside world.

The railroad ran only a few trains, the boats stopped altogether and there were no wagon and automobile roads except the one to the county seat. And that road has hard sledding because with a decreased population and nothing but wild and rugged scenery in all directions the powers that be in the county seat town of Caledonia could not see the necessity for spending road money down Brownsville way. And so it seemed as if Brownsville had the whole world up against her and then came the saddest blow of all. With the announcement of the Babcock plan for one hundred million dollars worth of good roads for Minnesota came also the announcement that as Brownsville was almost a deserted village none of this hundred million dollars would go for road building in or near Brownsville.

Then something happened. Brownsville woke up and began taking account of stock. Promised a place on the scenic highway. Brownsville assembled her live wires and organized a unit of the Mississippi river scenic highway. Fifteen hundred dollars was subscribed or underwritten in twenty minutes by several of her leading citizens. Then committees went to work and secured additional support from farmers and neighbors and Brownsville suddenly blossomed forth as a town of scarcely 400 population but with 800 votes and possibly 1,000 in the affairs of the Mississippi River Scenic Highway association. With her nearby neighbors of Lansing, New Albin, La Crescent, Harpers Ferry and McGregor lined up with another thousand votes Brownsville feels her place on the highway is secure, but to make doubly sure Brownsville is going to improve her own roads, in going to vote solidly for the Babcock plan whether or not she gets any direct benefit and is from this on going to have the world know that she is first, last and all the time for good roads and the Mississippi river scenic highway.

In passing, it should be noted that tourists to Brownsville will find free camping sites, delicious water from a thousand springs, rugged cliffs, dense forests, scenery unsurpassed by any in the United States, country as wild as the day the red man wended his way over the hills, and man, the greatest bass fishing on the Mississippi river. A trip over the scenic highway to Brownsville will be a summer vacation in itself.

The officers of the Brownsville unit are: Henry Descher, president; Nicholas Bisson, first vice president; O. L. Darling, second vice president; A. L. Higgins, secretary and treasurer; A. E. Cox, J. W. Hauke; executive committee.

NEARLY 15,000 ACCIDENT CASES SETTLED BY INDUSTRIAL COMMISSION DURING 1919 SEVERITY OF CASES REPORTED INCREASED

MADISON, Sept 7—The 14,995 accident cases which were settled under the workmen's compensation act in 1919, involved a total loss of 2,875,875 working days, as shown by a table upon the causes of industrial accidents in 1919, today issued by the industrial commission. The total number of days lost as a result of industrial accidents was greater in 1919 than in any previous year, although there was a decrease of 12% in the number of accidents. This marked increase in the severity of industrial accidents was due principally to the increase in the number of permanent total disability cases and death cases. For both of these classes of cases the highest figure ever reached in 1919. As compared with 159 deaths from industrial accidents in 1918, there were 226 in 1919, and there were 21 cases of permanent total disability as compared with 11 in the preceding year.

Accidents on all kinds of machines formed a somewhat smaller percentage of the total number of accidents than in 1918, but were responsible for the same percentage of the total days lost. There were 3,132 accidents on machinery, which caused a total loss of 777,956 working days, representing 27.1% of the total days lost.

Circular saws were again the most dangerous of all machines. There were 485 accidents on circular saws in 1918, which caused a total loss of 134,330 working days. Punch presses were again second in number and severity of accidents on machines, with 262 accidents and 68,142 days lost. Presses of all kinds caused 372 accidents and were responsible for 99,253 days lost. The number of saw and press accidents was very nearly the same in 1919 as in 1918, but the number of days lost because of such accidents increased considerably.

More accidents were caused in handling objects than on machines of all kinds, but these accidents were responsible for less than 29% as many days lost. There were 3,280 accidents due to this cause in 1919, causing 232,041 days lost. Falls of persons were responsible for 1,804 accidents, causing a total loss of 340,130 days lost. 36 of these accidents were fatal. Falling objects caused 1,022 accidents and 141,600 working days lost. Tools caused 994 accidents with 86,953 days lost.

Cranes, hoists, elevators, electricity and explosives, while responsible for a comparatively small number of accidents, accounted for a considerable percentage of the total days lost and of the fatal accidents. Cranes, derricks and hoists caused 394 accidents, 17 of which were fatal. The total working days lost because of these accidents was 189,487. Elevator accidents were a little less frequent than in 1918, but the working days lost were trebled. There were 94 accidents on elevators, 10 of which were fatal, and the total working days lost was 76,397. Explosives injured 47 persons, 8 of them fatally and caused a loss of 60,661 working days. Electricity is represented by 75 accidents, 12 of which were fatal and a total loss of 82,895 working days.

CITY OFFICIALS APPROVE CLINIC HELD THIS WEEK

Chest Examinations are Indorsed by Local Authorities in Enthusiastic Style

"I feel that the chest clinic to be held in the Court House on Friday and Saturday of this week offers a rare opportunity for the people of La Crosse; and I sincerely hope that everyone who is interested in the condition of his lungs will take advantage of this chance for a free examination by such expert men as will be here for that purpose," said Mayor A. A. Bentley when interviewed today. "I am sorry that we can have the examiners here only two days, but even so, I am sure the people of the city and county will understand that the local chapter of the Red Cross, The Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association, and the State Medical Society are doing everything possible to eradicate tuberculosis in our community."

In speaking during the Labor Day celebrations at Riverview Park Mr. R. G. Knutson of the Labor Council urged all laboring people to attend the clinic; and Mr. Theodore J. Werle of the staff of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association emphasized the fact that tuberculosis would probably not be the terrible scourge it is if it were not for the fact that in the early stages of the disease people are not very sick and therefore not aware of their danger."

"It is these early unsuspected, and undiscovered cases that are the great problem in fighting consumption." Mr. Werle said. "In the draft examinations over 3000 Wisconsin boys in the ages between 21 and 31 were rejected or returned from army cantonments because they were found to have tuberculosis. Most of these young men never even suspected that they were not perfectly well. These men are however only half the number of cases in that age group, and the lesser part of the difficulty. For every one of those boys there is also a girl in that age suffering with the disease; and there is no official means of helping such unfortunate people to know the truth.

"Tuberculosis is by no means a hopeless disease. The trouble so far has been that early cases almost never have been found. The cases that come to attention through the ordinary channels are usually far advanced. Even with them the sanatorium treatment has been found to be remarkably successful. If all people would take chest examinations at regular intervals, early cases would be found and tuberculosis could be made as rare as small-pox is now. We could save at least 150,000 lives a year in the United States alone."

Plants Eat Insects.

That such plants as "Venus' flytrap" actually catch and squeeze to death flies and other insects alighting on their leaves has long been known, but the discovery is comparatively recent that the plants digest softer parts of their prey by means of a peptic ferment secreted by the leaves. These are real instances of plant feeding upon animals.

ELEVEN ARE DEAD IN COLLISION OF HOLIDAY TRAINS

Officials Begin Investigation of Railway Crash Near Denver Monday

DENVER, Col., Sept. 7.—With eleven dead and ninety-nine persons injured, six probably fatally, as the result of a head-on collision of interurban trains near Globeville, yesterday, Adams county officials today began an investigation to fix responsibility for the catastrophe.

The accident occurred shortly after a special train carrying excursionists to Eldorado Springs left Globeville, a Denver suburb. It crashed into the regular train running behind schedule.

James Murphy, brakeman on the special train, declared the clearance slip never should have been given the conductor at Globeville unless the track was clear.

NO DROP IN SIGHT ON LUMBER PRICES

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 7.—There is no prospect of a decline in the price of lumber, according to delegates to the fourth annual convention of the National Retail Lumber Dealers' association, which opened here today.

Charles A. Bowen of Detroit, secretary, said that lumber prices have fallen slightly in the last two months but expressed opinion that the bottom had been reached and that prices would soon reascend.

Clock Tells Time Everywhere.

There has just died in Aurora, Ill., an old man of eighty-two, named William Blanford, who labored all his life in every bit of leisure time he could spare from his day's work in perfecting a wonderful clock which he invented. This tells simultaneously the time in all parts of the world and records atmospheric changes and astronomical conditions. The great timepiece automatically lights at night. It has been inspected by scientists from all parts of the world. Aurora women are raising $500 to buy the clock for the city.

Night-Flying Butterflies

There are the "night butterflies," or moths, as well as the larger animals that wake up when half the world either has gone or is thinking of going to sleep, and for these there are special night flowers that do not fold up their petals when the sun has left them.

FEDERAL EMPLOYES IN CONVENTION AT ST. LOUIS TODAY

Increased Compensation is Principal Subject Discussed at Gathering

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Sept. 7.—Increased compensation for federal employes was the principal subject considered today at the convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes here. Business sessions were held on an all-day excursion on the Mississippi river.

Luther C. Steward of Washington, president of the federation, asserted the delegates desired a larger bonus than the annual one of $250 recently granted civilian employes receiving less than $2,500 a year.

W. D. Goodwin of Ashland, Wis., attorney for the government [illegible] service, had a resolution prepared [illegible] presentation urging that the bonus be increased to $480 a year. He had another resolution advocating one day for Sunday and holiday work.

A Big American Opal

What is considered as the largest uncut precious stone in the world is a flawless black opal recently discovered and now in the office of a government official in Washington. The gem is said to contain approximately twenty-one cubic inches, weighs 572,322 carats, and is valued by its owners at $250,000. The colors are a translucent blues and greens with a little red. The famous Viennese opal which was without equal until the American specimen was found weighs 1,658,927 carats, but has a number of flaws.

How Brazil Secured Its Name

Brazil is a Portuguese term derived from braza, "a live coal," an allusion to the red dyewood which abounds in that country.

No Inaction in Life.

The fact that life means continuous action from the cradle to the grave affords us much food for thought. We sometimes forget that we are going either forward or backward all the time; that we do not stand in our tracks and watch the world roll by and that we either win or lose life's victory day by day. There is no such thing as inaction in the business of life; there are too many forces about us clamoring for expression to admit of our remaining idle. We must either fight for our existence or be swept out of the ring, brushed and defeated. If we were to look into the book of our own lives and, turning it page by page, examine carefully the record, we would find that, compared with this time last year, for example, we have either pressed onward or fallen back.—Charleston News and Courier.

Sarah Fowler Adams of London wrote the hymn "Nearer, My God, to Thee."

MARKET ACTIVE

Oils Lead in Trading on Stock Exchange, Steels Strong

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Trading was active at today's stock market session, oils, especially the Mexican group, assuming leadership. Houston and Sinclair Oils were strong and steels were mainly represented by Bethlehem, which rose 2 points on reports of excellent earnings for the current quarter. Coalers were featured by Pittsburgh and West Virginia, in which buying was reported by interests identified with the company. Rails of the class which led the recent advance were firm but comparatively dull. Call money was freely offered at seven per cent but completion of arrangements for payment of the Anglo-French loan exerted no visible influence on foreign exchange.

NEW YORK, Sept. 7.—Resumption of trading on the Stock exchange today after the prolonged recess was attended by an irregular continuance of last week's advancing movement. The chemical shares were the most noteworthy features, as a result of the recent merger of several of the leaders of that industry. Barrett company made an initial gain of 4½ points and National Aniline rose 5¾ but General Chemical, which figured prominently in the consolidation, lost 8 points. Oils, steels and equipments, especially Royal Dutch, Crucible and Baldwin were firm to strong, but rails were little changed.

Selling became more effective in the final hour with call money at 8 per cent. Rails and steels were the first to lose ground, but the popular oils held most of their advantage. The closing was irregular.

WHEAT STRENGTHENED

Export Buying Stiffens Market; Reaction Follows

CHICAGO, Ill., Sept. 7.—Persistent buying on the part of export interests had a strengthening effect today on the wheat market. Besides, the government crop report tomorrow was expected to show a sharp reduction of the estimated yield of spring wheat. Opening prices, which ranged from ⅜c decline to 1⅜c advance, with December $2.40 to $2.41 and March $2.35 to $2.36, were followed by slight further gains and then something of a reaction.

Subsequently, northwestern advices of damage to grain in shock counted as a bullish factor. The close was firm, 1½c to 2½c net higher, with December $2.41 to $2.41¼ and March $2.38.

Liberal receipts weakened September delivery of corn, but later months sympathized with wheat strength. After opening ¼c off to ⅜c higher, including December at $1.19 to $1.19⅜, the market hardened all around but then eased down somewhat.

Unfavorable weather conditions counted more or less against the bears. Prices closed firm, ¼c to 2¼c net higher, with Sept. $1.37⅜ to $1.37⅝ and December $1.20⅝ to $1.20⅞.

Oats were governed by the action of corn, starting at 1¼c decline to ⅛c advance, and then scoring a little increased gain.

Higher quotations on hogs helped give firmness to provisions, nearly all the business was in lard.

Waiting For It to Move

An old Cornish woman who had never before traveled by rail went to a country station to catch a train. She sat herself down on a seat in the station, and after sitting there for about two hours, the station-master came up to her and asked where she was going. On her telling him, he said:

"Why, my good woman, the train has just gone, and there isn't another for a long time!"

"Why, Lor'!" says the old lady, "I thought the whole consarn moved."—"Humors of a Parish" (John Lane)

CAPITAL AND LABOR CAN WORK HARMONY UNDER GOLDEN RULE

Impressive Sermon on Great Question Delivered by Rev. C. C. Rowlison

DEFINITION OF DEMOCRACY FOUND IN THIS PRINCIPLE

Pastor Pictures World Peace Under its Application

"Laboringmen, do you labor in the spirit of the great carpenter of Nazareth, loving your neighbor as yourself? Employers, do you invite laborers in the spirit of Him who dared to ask men to follow him, even to the sacrifice of every possession?"—Rev. C. C. Rowlison.

Rev. C. C. Rowlison, pastor of the First Congregational church, delivered an impressive sermon Sunday morning on "Capital and Labor and the Golden Rule." He said in part:

"The Golden Rule: 'Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself.'—Leviticus 19:18

"The writer of Leviticus further says: 'The stranger that sojourneth with you shall be unto you as the home-born among you, and thou shalt love him as thyself. For ye were sojourners in the land of Egypt.'—19:34.

"Jesus quoted the Golden Rule as the second commandment.—Matthew 22:39.

"In Liviticus, this text appears in the midst of and on the level with many other rules and commandments.

"Jesus lifts it out of such common association, and places it on the level with the supreme command of love to God.

"Jesus, here and elsewhere, does another thing. While he lifts ancient truths out of their old environment and gives them new implications, those implications supremely and primarily flow out of his own life. He did not just say, here is the old standard, and it is your duty to live up to it. Rather he said, here is the standard which my whole life exemplifies—come and follow me.

Lesson is Taught

"What, for us, are the implications of such teaching and living as we find in the Master?

"Here is one who was born in a stable; reared in the poverty of a Galilean laborer; a carpenter by trade; a traveling teacher, preacher and healer by profession; in his death treated as a convict and traitor. With such a history and experience, how does he react to his environment?

"Does he revolt against the injustice done him? Does he become a revolutionist? No, though he does cry out against the injustice done others, and calls men to judgment for their inhumanity.

"Does he revolt against the bitterness and evil that is inherent in the world and become an anarchist, an atheist and nihilist? We shall never understand Russian atrocities until we understand nihilism as taught so long and universally there. Tourgeneff's 'Fathers and Sons' is a most interesting presentation of this. But Jesus never lost his faith in the fatherhood of God.

"Does he incite his followers to war and hate and bloodshed? Rather to the very end his council is, 'Love one another as I have loved you.' 'Love your enemies, do good to them that hate you, bless them that persecute you, and pray for them that despitefully use you.'

"And yet Jesus was not without other contracts than those of toil and poverty. He had the prosperity of a successful teacher and healer. He had the support of many followers. The wealthy made him their guest. Women of means provided for his necessities. He had the point of view of the capitalists and employers of his day. What was his attitude toward them?

Fruits of Effort

"He evidently taught that men had a right to the fruits of their efforts, even in the employment of their fellow men and the use of money, as is witnessed by the parable of the eleventh hour to hire laborers into his vineyard. He has a right to pay men according to contract. The parable of the talents is ample testimony to the obligation of men to make gains out of their possessions.

"But he also teaches that self-indulgence is nothing less than sin, and that peculiar kind of sin that marks a man as a fool, as shown in the parable of the rich fool.

"He clearly shows that the possession of property is a most dangerous power to its possessor, for he says to the eager inquiries of the man who had kept all the commandments that, if he should be perfect, he should sell all that he had and follow Jesus.

Property Is Sacred Trust

"That the possession of property is a sacred trust, to be used for the good of mankind—just like any other valuable possession—seems to be the whole implication of his teachings. It is the spirit of stewardship without which every possessor of property is lost.

"In other words, in his attitude toward both rich and poor, toward both employer and employe, toward both capital and labor, Jesus consistently lives up to the spirit of the golden rule.

"And as the golden rule worked itself out in his own life to a perfect manhood, so it is to work itself out in a Christianized humanity to a perfect society.

"Since the world war was hurled upon the world four years ago, we have been crying that democracy is the cure for the world's ills. We are demanding complete political, religious and industrial democracy.

"If we have the true definition of democracy in mind, there is no contradicting this demand. The philosopher Bentham says, democracy is a condition in which 'each one should count for one and none for more than one.'

"'Liberty, equality, fraternity,' is the French symbol for democracy. 'Right to life, liberty and pursuit of happiness' is the expression of the American Declaration of Independence.

"The French is the superior statement; for the right to life, liberty, equality and the pursuit of happiness implies that 'each one shall count for one and none for more than one.' But fraternity, which the French motto includes, implies something more; it implies the Golden Rule. There is no real fraternity except upon the basis of the Golden Rule. Fraternity means that each one shall, with the attainment of the highest efficiency serve all.

What it Means

"It means, in the words of Jesus, that, 'he that would be greatest among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant; even as the Son of Man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransome for many.'

"True democracy means rights, but it equally means responsibilities, to every man according to his abilities and capacity.

"The greatest application of the golden rule is, therefore, the same, whether to capital or to labor. It is an assertion that fraternity, the brotherhood of the human family, is superior to our theories about the rights of property or the rights of labor. No rights are ever right or ever safe except through the practice of the Golden Rule.

"Out of this comes the conclusion that the only true democracy is that in which every one, no difference who he is, what his origins are, what he does, or what he thinks, counts for one; and yet where no one, no difference what his possessions or his inheritance counts for more than one. There is no divine right of kings to count for more than one; and there is no divine right of any group to count for more than one. A majority may be and often is as autocratic as any regal group. Democracy has been more hindered by majorities with the spirit of the autocrat than it has been by the opposition of tories.

"Out of this comes also the conclusion that each one to count one must be one. He must make of himself the noblest, purest, strongest and most effective individual possible, or he simply becomes the tool of the demagogue rather than the true democrat.

"A further deduction from the application of the Golden Rule is that this highest attainment of each is not found in the assertion of the right of each, but in the completest devotion to the service of all.

Tests of Democracy

"It is an assertion that love and not hate; that good-will and not war; that right and not might; that fairplay and not falsehood; that righteousness and not merely keeping out of jail, are the tests of all true democracy, which is the same as saying, the tests of all true Christianity.

"As a recent writer has said, 'The democratic spirit, which is the Christian spirit, is the coming glory of the race.' Democracy and Peace, J. B. Pratt, p. 21.

"Laboring men. Do you labor in the spirit of the great carpenter of Nazareth, loving your neighbor as yourself?

"Employers, Do you invite laborers in the spirit of him who dared to ask men to follow him, even to the sacrifice of every possession?

"Do you, each of you, live and give to exemplify the spirit of fraternity as your master did? If you do, and so far as you do, the kingdom of God is in the midst of you. If you do not, war and the age-old wrongs of man to man will continue through you to curse the earth.

"The Golden Rule is an eternal law of human life, and is as inescapable as is the law of gravitation. Live by it, and life becomes good. Defy it, and make our own small rules, and human society tends to become a hell on earth.

"'My little children, love one another.' 'Except ye become as little children, ye cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven.'"

SURE WAY TO GET RID OF BLACKHEADS

There is one simple, safe and sure way that never fails to get rid of blackheads and that is to dissolve them.

To do this get two ounces of calonite powder from any drug store—sprinkle a little on a hot, wet sponge—rub over the blackheads briskly—wash the parts and you will be surprised how the blackheads have disappeared. Big blackheads, little blackheads, no matter where they are, simply dissolve and disappear, leaving the parts without any mark whatever. Blackheads are simply a mixture of dust and dirt and secretions from the body that form in the pores of the skin—pinching and squeezing only cause irritation, make large pores, and do not get them out after they become hard. The calonite powder and the water simply dissolve the blackheads so they wash right out, leaving the pores free and clean and in their natural condition. Anybody troubled with these unsightly blemishes should certainly try this simple method.

Merely putting a Heavy Truck on Air is Not Enough

NOT all pneumatic-tired trucks are delivering economy.

Some owners would have found it cheaper to stick to solid tires than to run on pneumatics not built to meet trucking conditions.

Merely putting a heavy truck on air is not enough.

The air has got to be contained in something—in something stronger than the ordinary pneumatic tire.

We don't recommend pneumatics for all truck uses.

But where we do recommend them, we recommend U. S. Nobby Cords—truck pneumatics built to meet trucking conditions—with side walls bulwarked, flaps moulded, breaker strips multiplied and cords positively anchored around the bead wires—features that give U. S. Nobby Cords the exclusive position they occupy today.
